SUPPLEMENTAL DETAILED ACTION

1. This communication is in response to Applicant's RCE filed on 07/22/2010.
2. Claims 67, 75, 79, 84, 94, 109 and 145-153 remain pending and have been examined. Claims 154-156 have been added.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 67, 75, 79, 84, 94, 109 and 145-156 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103 (a) as being unpatentable over Arnold et al. (U.S. Pat. No. 5,440,723) and Cozza (U.S. Pat. No. 5,502,815) in view of Computergram International, November 28, 1989.

As per claims 67, 75, 79, 84, 94, 109 and 145-156 Arnold discloses a periodic monitoring of a data processing system for anomalous behavior that may indicate the presence of an undesirable software entity such as a computer virus (which is readable as Applicant's claimed invention wherein said a data processing system which has the ability to deal with infection of a file with a virus), the system comprising:

A storage device storing files (see., abstract, fig 1A, items 24 and 26, col 3, lines 49-68);

A virus scanner adapted to scan a file stored in a storage device for infection with a virus (see., col 1, lines 45-68, col 2, lines 1-11, col 5, lines 29-45); and the limitation of converting device converting the quarantined file into encoded data when the infected file is detected is also disclosed by Arnold in col 1, lines 45-63, specifically wherein said converting the binary machine code of the virus (or infected viruses) to an assembler version, analyzing the assembler code, selecting sections of code that appear to be unusual or virus like..).

Arnold fails to explicitly disclose the limitation wherein said saving or storing a detected virus-infected file into a specific area within said storage device. However, Cozza a method/apparatus for increasing the speed at which computer viruses are detected stores initial state information concerning the file or volume which is being examined for a virus. This information is stored in a cache in a non-volatile storage medium and when files are subsequently scanned for viruses, the current state information is compared to the initial state information stored in the cache (see., abstract, col 1-col 5. Please note that the file can be infected with virus or without virus). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the computer virus of Arnold by including the limitation detailed above as taught by Cozza because this would increase the speed at which a computer can scan for the presence of a computer virus.

Arnold and Cozza fail to disclose the limitation of: of encoding the infected file and stored in another storage area. Computergram International discloses a back-up software and hardware also automatically detect and isolate computer virus, and, by compressing and encrypting them, renders them harmless (see., page 1). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the teachings of Arnold and Cozza by including the limitation detailed above as taught by Computer gram International because this would prevent copies of being damaged when a file is loaded into memory or storage area.

RESPONSE TO ARGUMENTS

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 67, 75, 79, 84, 94, 109 and 145-156 have been fully considered but they are moot in view of new ground (s) of rejection.
